Dear Friend of RICJ and Prospective Sponsor:

Rhode Island for Community & Justice is excited to announce our 70th Anniversary Community & Justice Fundraiser will be a networking reception on Thursday, December 7th, 2023, 6pm-8pm at the Rhode Island State House. At this event we will celebrate community leaders Silvermoon Mars LaRose and Dr. Larome Myrick, presenting them with RICJ's highest honor, the Community & Justice Award.

Your generous support of this event will ensure that RICJ's work can continue as we transform communities to become more inclusive and just. Our year-round Youth Empowerment programs aim to instill in teens a sense of self-worth, respect for differences and an aptitude for community service and leadership. Project RESPECT leadership camp engages young people in a process of self-discovery and intentional community building. Your support provides scholarships for teens with financial barriers to attend this one-week residential program despite its $600 cost. RICJ supports Juvenile Hearing Boards (JHB) across the state by providing best practices training and support to build their success, especially in our urban core. Based in restorative justice, JHBs are community, police, mental health professionals and schools working together to connect youth at risk with services, counseling and positive alternatives that can positively alter their life paths.

The work we do is vital and we need your help!

We hope you will join us to network with Friends, Supporters, Donors and Alumni of our youth empowerment programs. Depending on the sponsorship level you choose, you will receive a variety of benefits outlined in the enclosed list of sponsorship opportunities. We are grateful for your consideration. Please submit the enclosed sponsorship form by November 10th or contact Dr. Toby Ayers via email at ricj@ricj.org.

Thank you for your consideration and we look forward to seeing you on December 7th!

Warmly,

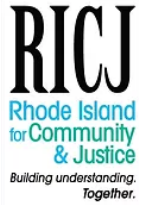

Toby Ayers, PhD, Executive Director, RICJ

Silvermoon Mars LaRose, is an enrolled member of the Narragansett Tribal Nation and Assistant Director of the Tomaquag Museum. She serves on a number of committees including the Rhode Island State Council for the Arts, Charlestown Conservation Commission, and the Avenue Concept board. As an artist and educator, she hopes to foster Indigenous empowerment through education, community building, and the sharing of cultural knowledge and traditional arts. Her BA in Sociology and minor in Justice Law and Society is from the University of Rhode Island

A transformational change-maker in juvenile justice, Dr. Larome Myrick is Executive Director of DCYF's Division of Youth Development. His community service includes boards of the African American Legacy Project, National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice, Nowell Academy, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Providence Human Relations Commission, and as Advisor to the RICJ Board. He holds a PhD in Criminal Justice, master's in Organizational Leadership, completed Harvard Kennedy School's program for senior executives, and teaches at College Unbound.
